The San Francisco Film Commission works to develop and promote film and media production activities in San Francisco. We proactively market San Francisco as a filming destination for the motion picture, television, advertising and other related industries for the purpose of stimulating economic development and creating jobs within the City and County of San Francisco, while also working with the local film community to support local projects with significant ties to San Francisco.

The Film Commission issues permits to productions shooting in San Francisco, working closely with other City Agencies such as SFPD, SFMTA, the Port of San Francisco, and the DPW to coordinate and facilitate the needs of the productions, the City and its residents. It also creates opportunities for film and media-related industry professionals and students to connect and innovate in order to build San Francisco’s vibrant legacy for being a premiere film and media production location.
Funding for the San Francisco Film Commission comes from the collection of permit fees and the Hotel Tax funds from Grants for the Arts.

The purpose of the Scene in San Francisco Rebate Program is threefold: 1, increase the number of qualified film productions being made in San Francisco; 2, increase the number of City residents employed in the film making industry; and 3, encourage the resulting economic benefits.

The program was created in 2006, with $1.8 million appropriated for 3 years. Initially, the program gave productions a dollar for dollar refund of: (a) fees or taxes paid into the City’s general fund; (b) monies paid to the City for use of City property, equipment, or employees, including additional police services; and (c) use fees for film production in the City. In 2009, the program was extended three years, but legislation was passed to exchange the original program per production cap of taxes paid to the City to a maximum of $600,000 of fees paid to the City.

In June 2012, the program was extended again for two more years, with an allocation of up to $2 million. The program was extended again in June 2014 for an additional four years, with an additional allocation of up to $4 million.

The Scene in San Francisco Rebate Program was a main attraction for three high-profile productions to base here: HBO’s Looking Season 2, Netflix’ Sense8 and Universal’s Steve Jobs. These three productions shot here for a total of 154 days, providing considerable employment to local crew and actors. These productions additionally prepped their shoots for weeks in advance, providing even longer term employment to the crew needed to assist with that.

Four productions qualified for rebates from the Scene in San Francisco Rebate Program in FY14/15. One production, Netflix’ Sense8, actually shot the previous fiscal year, but their rebate was issued in early FY14/15. The Steve Jobs film was shot during FY14/15, but their rebate was issued in early FY15/16. Both are reflected in the calculations below.

When including all productions which qualified for or received their rebate in FY14/15, these four productions received a total of $1,323,995 in rebated City fees. These four production companies spent a total of $12,826,828 locally. This number includes salaries to local crew/actors and as well as expenditures on items such as gas, hotels, car rentals, location fees, office supplies, lumber, security, equipment rentals, catering, etc. For every dollar rebated to these productions, $9.68 was spent locally.

The rebate program’s ability to draw such high quality productions to base in San Francisco not only helps to provide longer term employment for local crew and actors, but injects considerable amounts of money into the local economy. In addition, the images scene around the world in these productions help to attract tourists to San Francisco.
The Vendor Discount Program was established in January 2010 to attract more productions by offering additional financial incentives when shooting in San Francisco. This program provides an opportunity for production companies and their crew members to receive discounts while using the services of participating businesses and local merchants.

FY 14/15 was the second year of the two year grant which had been given to Ninth Street Independent Film Center’s Media Arts Incubator Program in FY13/14. Ninth Street’s Media Arts Incubator Program offers access to workspace, knowledge sharing, outreach opportunities, networking events, meeting and exhibition space on an annual basis. Ninth Street makes workspaces and shared resources available to individual filmmakers through the Media Arts Incubator Program to nurture groundbreaking independent media projects.

A total of five filmmaker projects are selected each year for the Incubator, with each resident filmmaker provided 100 sq. ft. of individual workspace, access to all shared spaces and 5 hours of free meeting or exhibition per month in the well-appointed Ninth Street screening room (particularly of value to filmmakers, in production and post-production).
With a robust first half of FY14/15 we anticipate a strong outcome for the entire fiscal year, especially considering the feature films and series which are currently slated to base here.
In the first half of FY15/16, one independent feature has based their entire production in San Francisco, filming for 23 shoot days. In the beginning of 2016, a feature called Birth of The Dragon will shoot for 6 days. Two feature films are looking to base in San Francisco this Winter and Spring/Summer, one shooting in February-March and one June - August. Netflix’s Sense8 and TNT’s Murder in the First are both expected to return sometime this Spring, and we expect to have portions of a feature film and a TV mini-series film in San Francisco in March.
